VISITOR AT PARTY.

"Well," said Billie Brownie, everyone has been doing the honors today, but the brownies. We haven't had any sort of party or entertainment for goodness knows how long.

Billie Brownie and Bonnie Brownie had any number of plans and schemes a-ripening. These were gnomes and there were fauns and there were pixies and there were sprites for everything. Little beings made out of snow.

Of course it was more for the idea of having than anything else, for they were all simple, but they were most beautifully made and everyone loved them.

The brownies and the gnomes had been over as the gnomes had all sorts of delicious meat which had been prepared along came a friendly creature wearing a white mantle of snow which was covered with jewels she had been given by the jewel fairies.

As Billie didn't recognize her, And then off at once, everyone shouted: "Who, it's the Fairy Queen!"

"Who is it?" said she gaily, "You see, Fairy Queen's Secret is easy to tell the time and the fairies who are most of the fairies know their names far down where the ponds are full of secrets and done up. And when they have built them right there where they all are.

"I'm taking a look," said Fairy Queen's Secret, "telling what children want and need mostly and then I'm going back and telling the fairies who pack up the secrets so they can be sent around with the aid of the Dreaming King."

"I happened to hear you were having a party and so I thought I'd drop in."

She was followed by cheers and cheering.

"And," she said, when she was having off, after handing them for the wonderful time, "I'm going to tell the fairies to pack up their secrets which tell that one of the best things in the world is to be wanted around and loved by others!"

They were made like all sorts but inside along with a number of soft showballs ready for snowball fight to match the afternoon's entertainment, there were snow showballs upon which were great dishes filled with goodies to eat and goodies to drink.

They hadn't known just how they

WAR BRIDES, AHoy.

According to English Visitor, we are Responsible for Extreme Styles Adopted by Women.

The more important question underneath the clothes question is what sort of appeal the new "fashion" styles are intended to make of us, says the Boston Transcript. Mrs. Beatrice Engle-Hulbert Hulbert's enterprising talk on this question starts off by saying frankly: "I do not believe that dress is based on a sex appeal." She thinks it is rather the reflection of a dress appeal—the attempt to display wealth.

After democracy had done away with many fine cuts, ruffles, wigs, velvet cloaks and such ostentatious luxuries of attire it became bad form for a man to show his class in his clothes, and so he advertises his prosperity by dressing up his wife.

"The modern American woman," says Mrs. Hale, "is nothing short of a shop window for her husband who shows off his success. I speak of the average business woman, of course, not of the intellectual man. The cause of the inherent snobishness of executives comes from the offspring of the old society system of Europe. Our education in dress here in America has come from the merchant who has goods to sell; we don't know where we are today trying to went off the styles these merchants are willing to sell us. We do not wear shiny materials because we are trying to make a sex appeal, but because it is the interest of the merchant to sell something perishable."

What terrible creatures these young women who think and know how to speak? The educate was in letting them learn the alphabet.

Sleep All Winter Long.

When raccoons sleep away the cold snap in the winter, says the American Forestry magazine of Washington, it is not an uncommon thing to find a whole family, or maybe several families, curled up together in the hollow of some big tree.

BOSTON—Parisian wives of American soldiers are learning to bake doughnuts, beans, pies and puddings. Here in Boston the War Brides of America have been organized by Mrs. L. E. Edwards of Melrose, Mass., and with good citizenship, real home cooking and the English language as the goal, French lassies are working hard and making great progress.
